

By the King.

A Proclamation for the further Proroguing of the Parliament.

Hereas at Our last Session of Parliament, the same Our Parliament was prorogued by Us, vntill the twentie day of October then next comming, and now neere at hand; Wee, by the aduise of Our Privie Councell, for diuers weightie reasons Us especially moouing, Which concerne Our affaires both at home and abroad, doe heereby publish and declare Our Royall Will and Pleasure, That the same Parliament shall be againe prorogued, from the said twentie day of October, vntill the twentie day of January now next ensuing: Whereof the Lords Spirituall and Temporall, Knights, Citizens, and Bur- gesses, and all others whom it may concerne, may heereby take notice, and order their affaires accordingly: Wee letting them know that Wee will not at the said twentie day of October expect the attendance of any, but such onely as being then in, or about Our Cities of London or Westminster, may attend the making of the said prorogation, as heeretofore in like case hath beene accustomed.

Given at Our Honour of Hampton Court, the first day of October, in the fourth yeare of Our Reigne.

God sauе the King.

Imprinted at London by Bonham Norton, and John Bill, Printers to the Kings most Excellent Maiestie.
ANNO M.DC.XXVIII.